

Job Tips for 50+ Workers

www.aarp.org/jobtips

Web Sites for Small Business Owners and Self-Employed

The Internet is a rich source of information for small business owners and would-be entrepreneurs. You can find planning tools, checklists, tutorials, and counseling to help you start, fund and manage your business. Here's an alphabetical list of sites to start you off.

Internal Revenue Service

www.irs.ustreas.gov/businesses/small/index.html

Search the IRS Small Business and Self-Employed One-Stop Resource by topic or business type; take an online tax workshop.

My Own Business

www.myownbusiness.org

Take a free online course from this nonprofit organization on starting your own business.

National Association for the Self-Employed

www.nase.org

A leading resource for the self-employed and micro-businesses

National Federation of Independent Business

www.nfib.com

Small business advocacy organization with offices in Washington, DC, and all 50 states.

Nolo

www.nolo.com

Everyday law for everyday people. Answers questions about small business structure and operations.

The Riley Guide

www.rileyguide.com/self.html

Tutorials on business start-up, sample business plans, financing sources and legal tips.

SCORE—Counselors to America's Small Business

www.score.org

Review your business plan with a free SCORE counselor, find your local SCORE chapter, or ask questions online. Sponsored by the SBA and others.

Small Business Administration

www.sba.gov

Find tools to plan, start, manage and expand your business. Free online courses; links to many other resources.

Small Business Development Centers

<http://sbdcenter.org>

Find your local center, take a course, meet with a business adviser, find start-up advice. Sponsored by the SBA and others.

Small Business—The Wall Street Journal

<http://online.wsj.com/small-business>

News, features, blogs and podcasts on small business management, financing, technology and much more.

WorkingSolo.com

www.workingsolo.com

For entrepreneurs who want to work independently.

WorkplaceHomeBiz.com

www.workplacehomebiz.com

For people who want to work at home or start a home-based business

These resources are provided as a public service. Their inclusion does not imply an endorsement by AARP of organizations on this list or the content on their sites.

HEALTH / FINANCES / CONNECTING / GIVING / ENJOYING