Caregiving may be one of the most important roles you will ever take on in your life. You may have become a caregiver suddenly or perhaps your role has evolved over time. No matter where you are in the continuum of caregiving—starting to plan, helping to coordinate a big move, or taking care of a family member in your home—having resources at your fingertips will make the process easier.

With many organizations offering different types of help and services, it can be a challenge to sort out the specific type of help or services best suited for your needs. AARP developed this resource guide with you—the caregiver—in mind as a starting point to help you find the services and supports you need throughout your caregiving journey.

We hope this resource guide can assist you in the following ways:

> Help you get the type of assistance you need. This directory lists many government and nonprofit resources, which you can access both in-person and online.

> Help you connect with others. You’ll discover, if you have not already, that you’re a part of a community of caregivers and caregiver supporters. You are truly not alone.

> Help take care of yourself. This is vitally important but something that many caregivers often overlook. The act of caregiving can take a physical and mental toll on the caregiver. So, it’s important that you make self-care a top priority.
Tips to Find Services and Supports

Here are a few pointers to keep in mind as you begin to look for resources and support.

Ask for help.
Friends and family will often ask you if there is anything that they can do to help. Use your network and ask others to help you look for resources and information in your area.

If possible, use the Internet.
The Internet is an easy and quick way to get information. Because information can vary, it is important not to rely on one site alone. Also, make sure the sponsoring organization is a reputable and reliable source of information.

Talk to a real person.
Many phone numbers will lead to voicemail. It’s important to leave a message, but don’t wait for someone to call you back. Keep in mind that some services have backlogs of calls to return. Keep calling back until you connect with someone who can help you. Usually a second request receives prompt attention.

Write down your questions in advance.
Before you call, write down specific questions and try to be as concrete and detailed as possible.

Keep track of your conversations.
Keep a notebook of who you talked to. Write down names, phone numbers, and notes from each call. You never know when you will need the information down the road.

No one person or organization has all the answers.
The person you get on the phone or the website you visit may have expertise in certain areas, but not in others. It is always smart to be prepared with other resources and organizations that can help.

Use your creativity.
Create your own personal resource network. This could include contacting community-based agencies to find out what kinds of support services are available in your area. Consider asking friends or other caregivers what resources they found to be useful.

Many services are local.
Services can vary widely from state to state and region to region. Make sure you look for resources that provide services where you live.

“I am my parents’ caregiver 100% of the time. I am their medicine dispenser, cook, driver, entertainment and constant companion. It is a financial hardship.”
