

AARP Supports Veterans, Military and Their Families

AARP has Customized Resources and Free Tools for Family Caregiving, Fraud Prevention, Employment and more.

AARP salutes the service and sacrifice of America's Veterans, Military, and their families. With over four million members nationwide who have served our country, we have a long history of providing free resources, important information, and timely programming to meet your unique needs. AARP wants to make it quick and easy to access those free resources and other tools at aarp.org/Veterans

Supporting Military Caregivers

The caregiving journey for families caring for their military wounded and veterans has unique challenges. AARP is proud to support the nation's 5.5 million military and veteran caregivers who deliver voluntary, uncompensated care for their wounded warriors every day.

These hidden heroes need our help, so AARP offers family caregivers and their loved ones free community programs, easy to access on-line resources like our Military Caregiving Guide, and other specialized services to make it easier for people to live independently in their homes and communities.

No matter where you are on your family caregiving journey, having a good road map will make the path a little bit easier. Check out free tools and resources online.

Working to Keep Veterans Working

AARP helps those who've served better understand the civilian job-seeking process and challenging employment landscape. AARP provides tools and resources to help those active duty military and veterans aged 50-plus find employment and advance their careers. AARP offers:

- The AARP Job Board connects experienced veterans with age-friendly, military-supportive employers.
- A free resume critique from the AARP Resume Advisor that can help military and veterans prepare for civilian jobs and careers.
- Free information, programs, and expert insight on staying competitive in the workforce or starting a new business.

FRAUD WATCH NETWORK

Protecting Veterans from Fraud

Veterans & military families are twice as likely as civilians to be targeted by con artists. Top scams include stealing personal military information, fake veteran's charities, VA benefits fraud, bogus job schemes and illegally charging for military records that veterans can get for free.

Operation Protect Veterans is a joint effort of AARP and the U.S. Postal Inspection Service to help veterans & military families fight back and protect themselves and their loved ones by raising awareness of scams and fraud.

AARP's Fraud Watch Network is a free resource available to anyone. It provides biweekly Watchdog Alerts on the latest scams, a scam-tracking map, tip sheets and more online. It also offers toll-free access to trained volunteer fraud fighters to whom you can report a scam or get help if you've fallen victim:
1-877-908-3360.
