Some Coloradans 50+ experienced changes in their financial situation, while many did not.

Despite the COVID-19 pandemic, most Coloradans ages 50+ describe their overall financial situation as better (35%) or the same (53%) as this time last year.

However, roughly one in ten (12%) describe their overall financial situation as worse than this time last year.

Those with lower incomes and those ages 50–59 are especially likely to say that their overall situation is worse.

19% of those with incomes under $50K describe their financial situation as worse than this time last year, compared to just 12% of those with incomes of $50K–$99K and just 7% of those with incomes of $100K or more.

17% of those ages 50–59 describe their financial situation as worse than this time last year, compared to just 10% of those ages 60–69 and 8% of those ages 70+.
